TECH NEWS!

We are delighted to announce the completion of the first phase of our Technology Upgrade Project, made possible by a grant from the Watts Community Foundation! All of our Patron Workstations are now running on Windows 7 and are equipped with either Office 2010 or 2013, featuring Word, Excel and Power Point. Our new Envisionware Workstation Management system, installed on February 18th, manages all patron computer sessions and printing. Our new Print Release Station features black and white, color and duplex printing options, as well as the ability to preview a print job before completing it and delete it if it's not quite right. No more pages printed by accident! No more printouts that don't look the way you expected! You even have the ability to return later in the day and reprint a job from earlier, if you need another copy! The new system is very straightforward to use and Librarians are delighted to offer instruction and assistance to help you learn how it works. (Please note that the coin-operated print station accepts nickels, dimes, quarters, and $1 and $5 bills. We are generally unable to make change for larger bills, so ask that patrons please try to have what the machine can accept, before printing.)

In a final attempt to save the attacking British army from disaster everything depended on 800 young Australian horsemen to cross 3 miles of open desert into a shell fire and machine gun crossfire. They changed the history of the Middle East.
